Dear Parent,

Reading books aloud to your child is one of the most important things you can do for their development. Reading will stimulate your child's imagination and expand their understanding of the world.

Aloha,

Las tres hermanas de Aditson

Aditson's Three Sisters

Había una vez un niño llamado Aditson.
Escuchó a las abejas, las plantas y los animales.

There once was a little boy named Aditson. He listened to the bees, the plants, and the animals.

Aditson y su familia vivían de la tierra. Comían maíz, frijol y calabaza.

Aditson and his family lived off of the land. They ate corn, beans, and squash.

Estas tres cosechas eran conocidas como las tres hermanas. Eran la hermana Maíz, la hermana Frijol y la hermana Calabaza.

These three crops were known as the three sisters. They were Sister Corn, Sister Bean, and Sister Squash.

El padre de Aditson le dio tierras para cultivar.
Su padre le dijo que tenía un don especial.

Aditson's dad gave him land to farm. His father told him he had a special gift.

Aditson fue el primero en sembrar maíz. Pero la hermana Corn estaba molesta. ¡Sus raíces estaban todas mojadas!

Aditson planted corn first. But, sister Corn was upset. Her roots were all wet!

La próxima vez plantó maíz en montículos.
La hermana Corn creció, pero todavía estaba triste. Ella quería una amiga.

The next time he planted corn on mounds. Sister Corn grew tall, but she was still sad. She wanted a friend.

Aditson plantó un campo de frijoles pero no crecieron bien. Cayeron al suelo. Los frijoles necesitaban ayuda para mantenerse erguidos.

Aditson planted a field of beans but they did not grow well. They fell over onto the dirt. The beans needed help to stand tall.

Aditson tuvo una idea. Podría sembrar frijol con maíz. Corn podría ayudar a Bean a mantenerse erguido y Bean podría ser un amigo para Corn.

Aditson had an idea. He could plant Bean with Corn. Corn could help Bean stand tall and Bean could be a friend for Corn.

Sus frijoles y maíz estaban contentos, pero tenía demasiadas malas hierbas que arrancar. Aditson estaba muy cansado.

His beans and corn were happy, but he had too many weeds to pull. Aditson was very tired.

La hermana pequeña Squash vio lo cansado que estaba. Ella le dijo cómo podía ayudar.

Little sister Squash saw how tired he was. She told him how she could help.

La siguiente vez que plantó semillas, Aditson plantó maíz, frijoles y calabazas juntos. La calabaza daba sombra para mantener alejadas las malas hierbas.

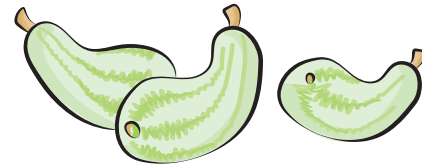

The next time he planted seeds, Aditson planted corn, beans, and squash together. Squash made shade to keep weeds away.

Pronto, otros agricultores estaban plantando a las tres hermanas juntas. A partir de ese día siempre hubo suficiente comida para comer.

Soon, other farmers were planting the three sisters together. From that day on there was always enough food to eat.
