Soral's Bird Cafe

Soral and her friend Gophie love birds. When she grows up, Soral wants to study birds.

Sorai is going to put out bird seed. She will watch and see what birds come to eat.

Soral has fun putting bird seed out in the yard to start her experiment.

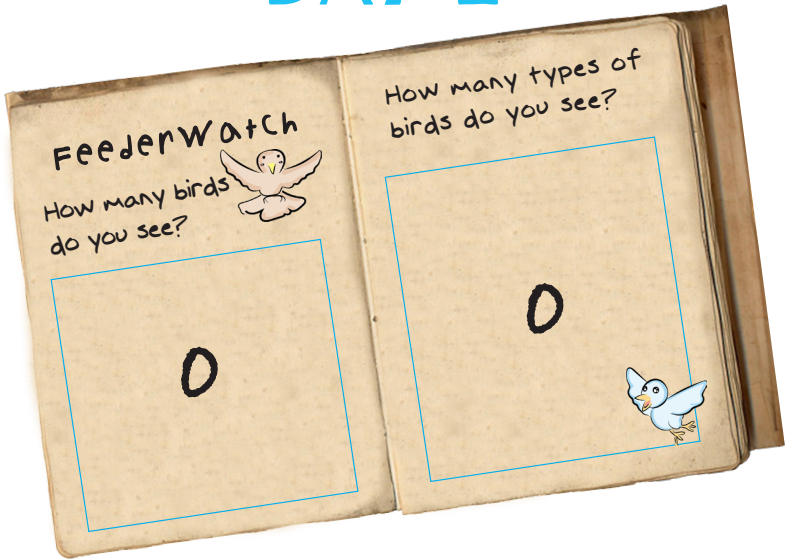

There are no birds yet. Soral knows she must wait for the birds to find her seeds.

On the first day of bird watching, Soral sees no birds. She is sad, but Mom says to wait and give it more time.

DAY 1

Soral writes a zero in her book because she did not see any birds at her feeder today.

The next day, Soral sees little brown birds eating her seeds. She is excited! She runs to get her journal.

Help Soral count the birds and write the number in her journal.

DAY 3

Gophie helps the next day. He sees lots of new birds at the feeder!

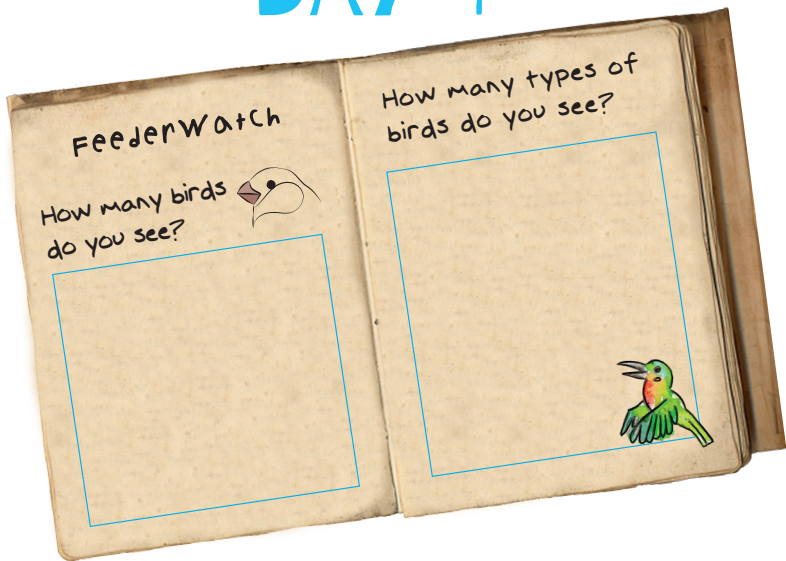

The next day, Gophie helps too. He sees lots of new birds at the feeder!

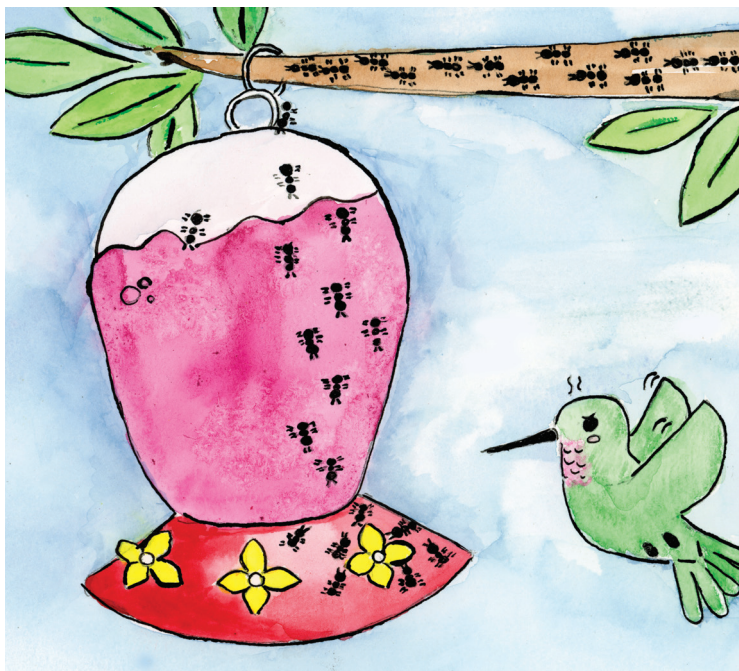

More and more birds come! Can you tell which birds have not been here before?

DAY 4

Help Soral be a careful scientist and record the birds that came today.

Oh no! There are ants at the hummingbird feeder. Soral must help the hummingbird so that it can get its food.

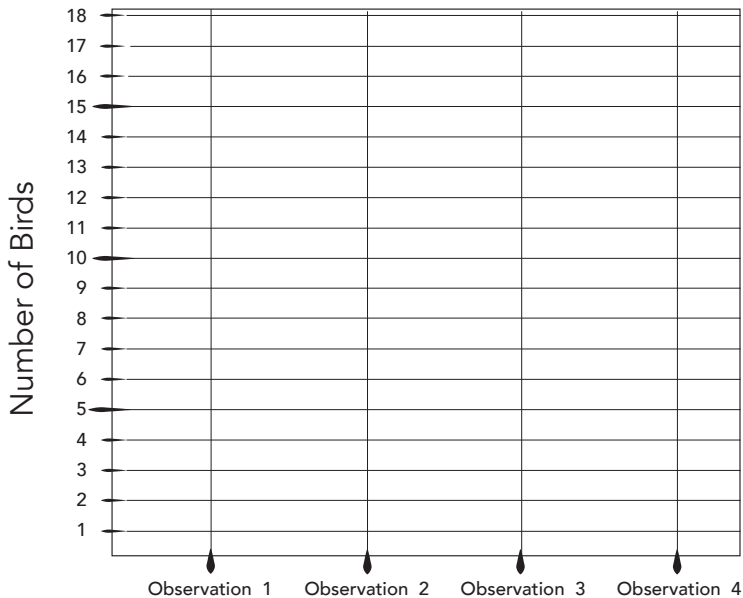

Soral cleans the feeder and moves it to a new tree branch where the ants can not find it.

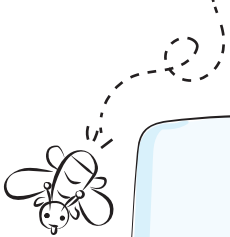

Now, Soral is making a graph of the birds that came each day. Graphing is fun, but don't eat the graphs, Gophie!

Birds that visited the feeder

Can you help make a graph of the birds that visited Soral's feeder?
